The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

5,105

The day is in the ropes.

Barre congratulates Maine granite towns on their prospect of business picking up because of a large contract. Barre is in a position to offer congratulations.

To be "weary of the whirl of society" is a strange cause for a woman like Mrs. Pierre Lottland, jr., to commit suicide. Why not just withdraw from society rather than from the world?

Good for Chester and its enterprising factory firm which was burned out recently! The factory is to be rebuilt and on a larger scale than before. There's energy and courage combined.

The Concord, N. H., Monitor recently remarks that if the New Hampshire legislature would leave run alone it would finish the session much sooner. The statement is not to be taken literally, however, for the run, either.

The letters of Lamont county have agreed on a system of assessing property. Now if the letters of the state will agree on a system, Vermont's taxation problem will be minimized to a great extent. Much of the difficulty of the present arises from the wide variance of the methods.

It is interesting to note the demand of the Springfield Reporter to discontinue the one-horse snowplow and substitute a village ordinance requiring property owners to clean the snow off their sidewalks. That would be like the act of a drowning man throwing away a life-preserver and taking his all upon a written promise of rescue. Ordinances, written or printed, read very well, but they are not dependable things when action is required. City after city of the smaller class and village after village have adopted ordinances requiring that property owners sweep the snow from the sidewalks in front of their property; and in nine-tenths of the cases the ordinances are never enforced, and the task of removing the snow is performed by the corporation, municipal or village. In the larger cities the ordinance has been enforced and it seems to work well. But for small cities and villages like Springfield, Vermont, the sentiment is such that the public snowplow is still a vital necessity. We trust that Springfield will not throw away its life-preserver for anything so intangible and unenforceable as a snow-cleaning ordinance, well meaning as the ordinance may be. The good old one-horse snowplow carries off the snow, and an ordinance doesn't.

A joke bill for regulating the use of automobiles which has been introduced in the New York legislature is summarized by the Springfield Republican, and it seems to be worthy of fame as the product of an enlarged mentality. The bill is thus summarized by the contemporary: "It provides that any chauffeur, upon the discovery of an approaching team, must stop beside the road and cover his machine with a tarpaulin painted to correspond with the surrounding scenery. All automobiles must be seasonably painted so that they will correspond with the surrounding scenery and not be startling. By this it is meant that automobiles shall be painted green in the spring, gold in the summer, red in the fall and white in the winter. The safety of pedestrians is cared for in a clause which is to the effect that a chauffeur, on approaching a turn in the road, must come to a standstill not less than 100 yards from it, look his horn, ring a bell, fire a revolver, holler and send up three aerial bombs at intervals of five minutes. It would be a good thing to pass this bill—common things of the road pull upon the motorist, he wants new experiences—give him some fresh fun, and let him not only wear the parti-colored jerkin and the pretty goggles, but give him cap and bells and the rest."

WHEN IS A VERMONT A VERMONT?

In view of the fact that Vermont is not likely to have many ambassadorships and minister's positions offered her by President Taft, it does not seem just right for the St. Albans Messenger to attempt to scratch out Henry C. Ide's appointment to Spain as belonging to Vermont. Moreover, the attempt to "read out" Mr. Ide as a Vermonter is hardly justified. Mr. Ide has not resided in Vermont of late years, but one cannot reside in Vermont and govern the Philippine Islands at the same time; nor can one claim the closest alliance with things in his native state when he is off in some foreign country to which he has been sent through the national administration. The fact is, that most of the time when Mr. Ide has been away from St. Johnsbury was when he was occupied in some official position or carrying out some public trust, as, for instance, when he

THE TEST OF TIME

"How long have they been in business?" An answer to this question is necessary to fix the standing of any business house. Before any concern can claim high rank in the business world, its stability must be proven by The Test of Time. And the longer it has been in business with an honorable record, the higher it is rated by public opinion.

In the banking world, no less than in other lines of business, time must test the strength of any institution. It takes time to show whether the loans of a bank are good, whether its management is conservative, whether its policy is safe, whether it can combine these important features, and be progressive.

This bank has a record of twenty-four years successful business, twenty-four years of satisfactory service to the people, and with one year more from the 13th day of April this institution will have completed a Quarter of a Century of business, Being the Oldest Bank for Savings in the City of Barre, and one of the most important factors in the early development of the Granite industry, as well as in the growth and development of the City of Barre, during this entire period.

With nearly 4,500 depositors it still endeavors to treat its patrons with the same prompt attention and courtesy, and invites all or a portion of your banking business.

Deposits made on or before April 6th will draw interest from April 1st, free of taxes under $2,000, in accordance with the State Law of Vermont.

JINGLES AND JESTS

Before The Battle.

We've had a fearful combat down to Pohl on the creek:
The words of anger an' reproof were flyin' round so thick
This peaceable community concluded 'twas best to fight.

To let the parties and it by a square an' stand-up fight.
So we held a little meetin' to decide upon the weight
Of gloves and on the length of rounds an' held the old debate
About the possible advantage of heft and size

And whether we should have Queensberry rules or London prize.

We started the discussion. In a little while the air
Was blue an' men were reachin' out fur whisksers an' fur hair
And never mindin' friends that might forever be estranged
So long as they could dictate how the fight should be arranged.

We said that there was principle that had to be maintained;
No struggle was too great considerin' what was to be gained.
The regular combat will come off when indignation cools;
It won't be much compared to the big fight about the rules.

—Washington Star.

No Place For Drones.
A wholesome tendency is apparent in connection with the filling of vacancies in senate committees at Washington, which has just been completed by the committee on committees. Greater prominence has been given to the daily work records of senators, as a reason for prominent on committees, than ever before in the senate. Heretofore, length of service has always constituted a considerable factor in fixing precedence in such matters. This time, it is explained, particular attention has been paid to records for attention to senatorial duties, and it is understood that whenever a senator has applied for a coveted committee assignment, one of the first questions considered has been in relation to his record for attention to business on the committees with which he has been connected.
